For the benefit of younger children, the city council has lengthened the list of streets available for coasting this winter by the addition of Academy street, a request for this privilege having been made at the council meeting last night. The Times has been asked to reprint the complete list of hills where coasting may be enjoyed and through this medium the authorities request that parents co-operate with them in having the restrictions respected. Here is the list: Batchelder street, Camp street, East street, Long and Warren streets, upper Granite street, Park street from the Tremont intersection southerly; Beckley street, John street and Foster street. Because of danger attending the practice of coasting across the railroad tracks, Berlin street has been stricken from the list this year.

Old and new dances will be in order at Howland hall Jan. 6. A good time for all.—adv.

Lyndol Waterman, who has been spending the Christmas vacation at his home on Washington street, returned to-day to Boston, where he will resume his studies at the Wentworth institute.

A group of Barre horsemen are seeking to arouse the enthusiasm of lovers of the horse race with the idea of putting on a series of matinee races this winter at the Granite City trotting park on Ayers street. Workmen are busy rolling and putting the track in shape for tryouts to-day. With the regular track and grandstand it is believed that a race can be watched with greater comfort and interest than on a straightaway ice track and so far the suggestion is being received with great enthusiasm. It is stated that a possible outcome of the agitation will be a series of races between Barre and Montpelier horses with alternate meetings in this place and in the Capital city. Nothing definite has been arranged as yet, however, though the sportsmen are planning to complete the arrangements in a very short time if the interest shown by the public warrants it.

There will be a reunion of the 1915 class of Spaulding high school in the form of a sleigh ride to Williamstown on Thursday evening, Dec. 30. Those going please notify Carter Downing. The barge will start from the high school building at 5:30 p. m.

Ardent spirits as the bane of all bliss and a source of much of the woe in this well known world was the theme of a street corner homily which a home-going member of the midnight crew started to deliver on North Main street rather early this morning. An expurgated report of the reformer's speech would leave much to be desired in the way of picturesque language, for his remarks fairly bristled with original invective. The benign influences of a friend, who urged him to compromise for the time being with the demon Rum by abandoning the street campaign, at last prevailed, and the young disciple of John B. Gough was led around a corner just in time to escape the vigilant eye of an approaching policeman.
